PILES.

Many a person has suffered for years with Internal, Bleeding, External or Itching Piles, and has tried, over and over again, for a remedy to cure, but in vain. Thus it used to be, but things are changed, improvements have been made and wonderful discoveries—one of the most important of the greatest benefit to mankind is Brigg's Pile Remedies, which are warranted to cure Piles in every form if used in time according to directions.

CORNS! CORNS!

What is more annoying than Corns? What can be more oppressive than Bunions? What is more painful than Ingrowing Nails? Let the victim answer. The most distressing of these torments can be immediately relieved and easily cured with Dr. J. Brigg's Alleviator and Curative.

LUNG DISEASES!

Diseases, Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma, &c.—The above complaints seem to be increasing in prevalence, and if not taken in time, may lead to that dreadful and fatal disease, consumption. What criminality to neglect them when the result may be so terrible! Brigg's Throat and Lung Healer is a positive remedy for all diseases of the throat, lungs and chest, ... when used in the morning of affliction.

Dental Card.
I wish to say a word to the Gentlemen and Ladies of Bangor and vicinity. As parents you would do more for your children than for yourselves. A gentleman in Bangor, who is fifty years old, was in my office in April and said that he would give me one hundred dollars if I would save one tooth in his mouth without extracting it. But he was too late. If a man will thus value one tooth, what should he do for his children.
Now if you cannot save your own, you can save the teeth of your children. Almost every day some father or mother will come to the office with some dear child to have me extract some aching tooth. I examine the mouth and find that the painful tooth is not a temporary but a permanent one. The parent is surprised, you are wrong, she has never had but one tooth there, she will certainly have a permanent tooth when this one is out of the way.
A very large proportion of our patrons, have never known, or have forgotten, that in our first set we have but twenty teeth. And that all teeth that grow back of the twenty are permanent ones, thirty two in all. I have extracted within the past year, seven permanent teeth for one little girl who was not eleven years old. Will your parents suffer your children to suffer for their life time by your neglect? If by neglect you have lost your natural teeth, a good editor will tell you where to go for the best artificial ones. Hundreds of people in Bangor and vicinity will endorse by their own experience all that he has said in his paper.
DR. J. K. LINCOLN.—Though we have not the pleasure of a personal acquaintance with the gentleman, yet we have reason to believe that he is a most skillful practitioner of the dental art. At least, he has made one old face in our house look young again, and has fitted, by art, a pair of jaws to masticate the food again which dame nature thought to deprive of this privilege a little too soon. We think the work and composition of the two full sets of teeth he has inserted cannot be exceled anywhere.—Rural Intelligencer.
My price now is $30 for a whole set of the best artificial teeth. $25 for a half set.

The following account of the saving of two Chinese sailors from a wreck, is taken from an English newspaper, published in China. Capt Patterson belongs in Stockton

Capt E E Patterson, of the American barque Alcyone, met with a most remarkable incident on his voyage from Amoy to this port. The Alcyone left Amoy on the 2d of December, for Singapore, and pursued her voyage until the 7th, when, at about 7 P M a light was discovered close to on the starboard bow. It was evident that the light proceeded from a boat or a raft, and being far from land, Captain Patterson judged that it must be some one in distress. Canvass was quickly reduced, and the ship hove to, to allow the boat to come alongside, but she failing to do so and the sea running too high to lower the ship's boat, the vessel wore round to endeavor to get near the boat, which was evidently unable to make the vessel. After wearing ship several times, after about two hours she got near enough to throw lines over the boat, which proved to be a Chinese sampan containing three Chinese. the poor fellows caught the line, and two of them succeeded in holding on and getting on board the ship, but the third, being blind from exposure, and too weak to bear his own weight, fell overboard and was lost in the attempt. When the poor fellows got on deck, they were completely exhausted, and it was found necessary to feed them like infants. When they were able to tell their story, it was found that they had been driven away by a gale from Formosa, which place they left on the 3d or 4th of November, their sail and mast had been carried away by the gale on the 2d day out, and their steering oar lost, leaving them without sail, mast, or oar, or rudder. The poor fellows did not despair, but managed to subsist from day to day by catching fish and birds, which they ate, and for water they had merely what they could catch when it rained. Thus they lingered day after day, drifting about at the mercy of the winds and waves, and when picked up by the Alcyone had been, incredible to relate, thirty two days at sea in this helpless condition, in an open sampan. During this time, who shall tell their sufferings and privations, and had it not been for the humane preserverance of Captain Patterson in "working" his ship up to them, attracted only by the light which they displayed as a forlorn hope, their fate must have been starvation in all its horrors. The boat had drifted S. W. 1/2 S. 1000 miles during the 32 days, being an average of a fraction over 31 miles per day.

Dr. James B. Cotter of Newark, N. J., indicted on three counts for procuring abortion, pleaded guilty on Monday and was recommitted for sentence.

ST CLOUD AFTER THE WAR

St. Cloud must be a charming place in summer, built as it is on the slope of a hill and its streets stretching up and down. It extends to the River Seine along which runs the road—to the left to Mont Valerien to the right to Sevres. Everywhere you see here the splendid villas of the rich Parisians in the midst of splendid gardens mostly ornamented with exotic plants. The gardens are but little damaged, but the exotic plants are frozen and soldiers have made walking sticks of their stems. Hollow statues ornamenting the gardens have been broken, probably in search ing for treasures hidden inside of them

I descended toward the river. Some buildings belonging to the palace are still to crably preserved. In a large establishment near the turning the road is the Prussian guard. The sentry box before it is riddled with bullets. ... trees were placed along the whole bank of the river and on the bridge ... [illegible] ... fishing hoping to catch a dinner

I turned again to the left ... [illegible] ... I found ... [illegible] ... the rubbish ... [illegible] ... by some balls ... [illegible]

I entered at least fifty houses ... proceed very cautiously ... walls ... were hanging ... the most dangerous manner ... [illegible] ... of the houses with rubbish and it is hoped that the proprietors will recover valuable things by removing it for which the greedy soldiers had no time. They had however found the entrance of all cellars ... those most cunningly hidden

Most of the inhabitants seemed to have it in the utmost hurry. This was to be seen in the mostly unburned kitchens where all the things were standing about. I was astonished to find even all coppers pans &c. In a store room I found on shelves ... [illegible] ... out a great many fine pears and apples—but all were rotten and thickly covered with mold

It was a most curious sensation—it was thus alone through these dead and ... [illegible] ... still animated houses. It was to me as if I were exploring Pompeii or Herculaneum. Through an iron gate with a hand ... inscription I entered a park. It was the part of Montour ... [illegible] ... burned out but the outside ... was literally preserved. On one side ... I saw the English flag and ... [illegible] ... Calway Englishman ... [illegible] ... met its proprietor who had ... [illegible] ... Egyptian figures and ... [illegible]

I crossed the ... streets of the village of St Cloud ... [illegible] ... before. Many of the ... [illegible] ... citizen

The poor people had not saved anything ... [illegible] ... spinter and some ... [illegible] ... the street that I glided ... [illegible] ... a crash giving me a fair warning too venturesome.—[Temp Bar

OCEAN CABLE.
Sent Interesting Fact
NEW YORK April ...
My dear Professor Morse. I have the pleasure ... [illegible] ... questions and herewith ... [illegible]
Q What is the date of the ... [illegible] ... of the first Atlantic Cable between Great Britain and America
A August 1858 ... [illegible]
Q What is the ... [illegible] ... cable between Europe and America
A ... [illegible] ... Newfoundland ... [illegible]
Q What ... [illegible]
A ... [illegible]
Q How far to the East have we ... graphic communication
A To Singapore. The line from there to Hong Kong is to be laid next month and the Australia from a point on the line of China in November next
Q Are the existing cables remunerative
A The business between Europe and America is controlled by the three following companies working in concert. They paid to their shareholders during the last year dividends on their capital as follows
The New York Newfoundland and London Telegraph Company 7 per cent
The French Cable Company 7 1/2 per cent
The Anglo American Telegraph Company 9 per cent
None of these companies laid aside during this period any reserve fund for renewals and repairs. I think they should first reserve at least 5 per cent per annum as a fund for this purpose. Had they done so for the last year they would have paid dividends to their stockholders of from 2 to 4 per cent—certainly too small an interest to receive on such risky property as cables at the bottom of the Atlantic
It is a remarkable fact that none of the long deep sea cables have ever yet earned sufficient money in any one year to have paid the lowest premium demanded by underwriters to insure their continuous working through that period
With great respect I remain
My dear Professor Morse

THE PERILS OF THE AIR.—A reporter of the Titusville Herald had a rather unusual experience at a balloon ascension at Corry which he writes

"I was special reporter for the late balloon ascension here and I therefore had the best seat that could be afforded me for the occasion. Our car was a small basket and there not being room for myself and the engineer inside, I simply tied a rope around my neck and hung over the outside. All things being ready they cut the ropes and away we went sky high. I had heard of 'Ascensionists Second Day Advent, 'Up in a balloon, boys How's that for high, and even of men being hung, but I never before experienced so much in a few minutes. We arrived at Constellation when the machine stopped, and not having any sand bags, it was necesary to throw over something as near sand as possible, as nothing else would cause us to rise higher. It was ascertained that I was made of clay, and orders were given to cut the rope. My hair stood up, I knew it would ease up on my neck, but was afraid it might spoil my boots when I landed. However, the rope was cut, my hair still standing, which fortunately caught on the willow basket, and we went up to the moon

"We now resolved to start home, as we were out of gas. The engineer tied the rope around my feet, threw me over, and held the rope in the basket. We went down as fast as I wanted to. When almost down I caught the end of a lightning rod in my mouth, swung my feet around and landed on a roof safely. I came near jerking the old balloon to pieces, stopping so quick. I shall not go up again."

VALLANDIGHAM'S PROGRAMME

It is very doubtful if Mr Vallandigham's new departure platform finds much acceptance at the hands of the Democracy, or that it will survive its use as a campaign expedient in Ohio The insincerity of this sudden repudiation of cherished doctrines with the acceptance of those directly opposed thereto is apparent and the project is briefly and plainly laid bare in the following extract from the N Y Standard

Hon Clement L Vallandigham has just put forth his projet for the reconstructed platform of the Democratic party. In effect, he undertakes the brilliant movement which, in the Virginia peninsula, was called a change of base ' A county meeting to name delegates to the coming State convention, held at Dayton on Thursday, was the occasion chosen by the Ohio leader for his political strategy He boasts that the movement has not been suggested, canvassed or recommended by any previous meeting In other words, he files a claim for a patent on the new platform He says he has consulted friends—leading Democrats in Dayton and through the country—and the invention has their approval

The examination of the specifications of the new platform show a fraudulent design to make use of principles and methods already in use by another party, and actually the property of that other to wit the Republican party now in power and using the very letters which Mr Vallandigham now proffers as a nostrum to resuscitate the fainting Democracy For more than a score of years the Democracy has consistently fought the battles in behalf of corruption, of caste [illegible] and the wrongs of [illegible], with all its accessories of usurpation tyranny and vicious force Opposing it the Republican party has advocated and fought for human rights and just government which shall protect alike all classes of men [illegible] elements have long been the very text of the Republican party its warp and woof On it the slaveholders' rebellion was [illegible] and its legitimate, logical conclusions are now embodied in the new amendments to the National Constitution

Opposition to these principles has for years been and now is the life of the so-called Democratic party The majority of its members and leaders believe that one class of men are born masters and owners of other men For that belief they were willing to fight, and [illegible] Defeat has not changed their belief Nor will the poor bait of an Ohio election or even a national contest [illegible] to win them from their political faith The real object of Mr Vallandigham's movement is to carry the election in his State as a foundation for a claim on the Presidential [illegible] He steals for the time a part of the platform of the Republican party to [illegible] Republican votes, trusting to party discipline for retaining his Democratic supporters till after the election, when of course, the old principles of his party will be reasserted in compliance with the dictation of the old leaders of the Democracy like Linton Stephens and Frank Blair

This new platform for the old hacks of the Democratic party to stand on will not avail to deceive the people who believe in the principles asserted in the constitutional amendments They will not at the call of Mr Vallandigham desert the party which conquered in the war for those sacred rights, and which now seeks to secure by a rigid and honest execution of the laws the fruits of that victory

In looking over our exchanges, we are reminded by chancing again upon that delectable sheet of a purpose to say a few words to the Democrat. We have taken especial pains to inform that paper that such notice as we might bestow upon it was due entirely to its new paper pretensions and not to any personal recognition of its conductors It seems however that this is one of the cases where [illegible] is insufficient as the editor of that paper insists upon familiarity notwithstanding that such advances have invariably been met by a [illegible] "Not at home" The last issue of the paper alluded to contains some exceedingly contemptible twaddle the publication of which is conclusive proof that the writer is alike ignorant of propriety and devoid of shame, and which is palpably intended to provoke a personal editorial controversy We are disinclined to give it the slightest attention and do so only in order to inform the Democrat in the most emphatic manner that while we may have occasion to rebuke the vicious utterances of the paper it will be utterly impossible for its editor to hold any personal controversy with the editor of this journal

We are quite sure that our readers would not be edified by the recital of a wretched political biography which is familiar to all our [illegible] population which has been repeated to [illegible] children by the quivering lips of [illegible] which as recorded in the [illegible] of The Democrat forms the most miserable chapter in the history of our State It is difficult to repress a smile when we find the very champion of cowardice and treachery [illegible] to the Code of Honor' In the palmiest days of the Duello, gentlemen were not wont to join personal issue with individuals of the class that receive the attention of Vigilance Committees and we feel warranted in giving the assurance that one who has luckily escaped the clutches of Judge Lynch—as was stated in Portland not long ago by a prominent Democrat—would undoubtedly be counted among the exempts With this comforting suggestion we leave the subject

BUTLER AND POMEROY General Butler has no idea of losing the satisfaction of having bothered Brick Pomeroy and accordingly replies to "Brick's denial of Butler's services to his former wife by publishing correspondence distinctly showing that the recent Mrs P applied to him as counsel and that the liberal allowances so promptly offered was due to his championship of the lady Among the letters, are two from the divorced wife one asking Butler's aid, stating that her husband had made no provision for her or their child for six months, and another thanking him for the kindly interest taken and giving her permission for the publication of her letter asking Butler's legal assistance So that Butler has surely paid Pomeroy one instalment of his debt of vengeance

The Democratic doctors disagree, as is shown by the following extract from the Washington organ of that party and the comments thereon by the great Tammany oracle

If the protocol should be published, so that the country might see the processes by which the results were reached, the treaty would be hooted out of sight as a disgraceful abandonment of every pretension that had been made on our side —[Washington Patriot

The protocol has been published and the country sees the abandonment of not one pretension made on our side, but the abandonment of so many British proposals, the reluctant acceptance of so many American, and all prefaced by the "regret" of a proud, strong nation (the apology most becoming for her to give or us to receive), that concern arises to know if any ministry, however powerful, can raise a whole people to "the height of this great argument.—N Y World

The Montgomery (Ala.) State Journal complains of the injustice so frequently done the native white Union men of the South by hasty, inconsiderate writers, who talk so flippantly about their dishonest motives. It feelingly remarks.

"Here, all around us, are Southern-born white men, loyal and true as the needle to the pole, shut out from church and social gathering and business, proscribed and banned by the unpunished malignants of the rebellion, now restored to the high places of power, by the magnanimity of the very party whose adherents they seek to destroy. We ask for those men the justice and sympathy which you accord to the struggling friends of freedom in Europe and in the islands of the sea. Beside their costly sacrifices, our loyalty is cheap and poor. We invoke for them the effective and earnest support of all good men in their heroic and perilous maintenance of the national faith amid the savage hosts of the revived rebellion."

Washington dispatches report prominent Senators as saying that the debate on the pending treaty has been conducted with perfect fairness, and that none of their fellow members have shown the least disposition to delay. The treaty has been considered as in Committee of the Whole, and was on Saturday reported to the Senate. Several amendments will probably be offered, but according to what the Senators are represented as saying no alterations will be made The Executive Department is anxious that Minister Schenck shall have in his possession the ratified treaty previous to his departure for London, on Wednesday next. There being some misapprehension in the minds of the Senators, as to the course pursued in Great Britain with reference to the treaty, one of them applied for information to Earl de Grey who said that treaties in that country are ratified by the Crown, and that the ratification cannot be violated or set aside by Parliament, before whom the treaty is laid for their information Therefore the Treaty of Washington after having been ratified by the Senate of this country and the Crown of England, even though Parliament should be opposed to it, will have the full force and effect intended by its terms

The Boston Advertiser's Washington special says of the Executive session on Saturday that 'all the amendments which were offered were voted down promptly by large majorities, and if they are renewed in ordinary session they will fare no better It is now agreed that no propositions to modify the treaty can possibly prevail The determination is to dispose of the treaty in season for General Schenck to take it to England with him on Wednesday The opponents of the treaty have lost all hope of stemming the current of opinion in its favor Old politicians say they have never seen greater unanimity of sentiment in behalf of an important measure like this, and affirm that no party in the Senate dare confront it. Be that as it may, the treaty will have an overwhelming majority, and it need excite no surprise if there are not half a dozen votes in the negative '

The Portland Press understands that "the Pension Agency at Augusta has become the subject of an active contention between the present able incumbent, Gen Boynton, and other parties who desire to take his place—Col F M Drew, Secretary of the State, is the most prominent candidate for the position, though General Connor and others are mentioned in connection with the position

Hon Caleb Cushing is out in an elaborate article strongly favoring the new treaty of Washington He rejoices in the conclusion of a treaty which is satisfactory to the honor and conducive to the interests of the United States' If ratified, it will, he says, "constitute an epoch in the history of the two nations, be the harbinger of a long, almost perpetual peace between the two great English speaking nations be auspicious of a long career of prosperity, as well to the United States as to Great Britain, and it will serve as an example of self-command amid grave international complications, and a standard of dignified and elevated negation for Europe and America'

GENERAL BUTLER'S OPPOSITION TO THE TREATY Gen Butler appeared before the Massachusetts Legislative Committee on Federal Relations Monday and read a letter making a 24 page pamphlet which he had addressed to his son in law Senator Ames, of Mississippi in which he elaborately reviews and generally condemns the treaty of Washington General Butler first criticises the settlement of the Fishery question, on which he says —

'Out of the 400,000 barrels of mackerel caught between Cape May, or the 39th parallel and the northern extent of their limit, by our fishermen, only some 30,000 barrels were last year taken east of the State of Maine, in all waters British or others In frankness it should be stated that owing to the annoyances which our fishermen suffered and from other special causes that the catch was smaller than usual But it may be safely put at an average not much exceeding 30,000 barrels During the Reciprocity Treaty and since its abrogation, when fishing under full British license our fishermen took something less than one fifth of their catch within the 3-mile line So that the amount of concession by the present treaty to us, is the right of Great Britain in 5000 barrels of mackerel when swimming in the sea within three miles of her shores—now, as fishing is only about a 15 per cent business, or in other words, as 85 per cent. of the value of the fish taken consists in the use of capital employed, labor expended in taking, curing, packing and preparing for market, it will be seen how inconsiderable is the right actually attempted to be ceded to us by the present treaty Its extent is in fact when reduced to a money value from $5000 to $7000 annually, only '

In this connection the General continues

'I see it stated, in what purports to be a protocol to the treaty, that the American Commissioners opened the negotiations with an offer to pay $1,000 000 in gold for this right, or $60,000 annually for all time for a right which Nova Scotia offered to sell and did sell for $7000 a year Where our Commissioners got their extraordinary valuation it is difficult to conjecture. It is not wonderful that the English Commissioners thought they had something too valuable to dispose of, when Yankees would offer a million dollars for the right, to begin with. As the Englishmen had ulterior objects to be gained, they would put no money value upon the fisheries, as they intended to force open our ports by their means" General Butler further says 'It cost the British Government $800,000 to guard the right of the value of $7000 per annum, which amount will be saved by the ratification of the treaty, to the Imperial Government and its adjuncts" The opening of our ports to British fish free of duty, and competition with the British bounty of $1 per quintal, and the French bounty of 10 francs and other features of the treaty, Gen Butler believes, will substantially ruin our fishing interests In concluding his review of the fishing question he says

"I grieve, therefore, that so complete an abandonment of American fishing interests should have been made by our Commissioners, and I trust the Senate will not ratify this portion of the treaty, unless there shall be found in other portions sufficient countervailing advantages, so that we can afford this great loss. It is expressly stated in the protocol, however, that the fishery questions were considered by themselves"

The remainder of General Butler's letter is devoted to the settlement for depredations on American commerce, navigation of the St. Lawrence and other matters embraced in the treaty about all of which he criticised with disapproval

E H Derby followed, endorsing General Butler's views and stating that the total value to Massachusetts of all the fisheries reached the sum of $17,000 annually, which interest was to be exposed to ruinous competition.—Mr Attwood of the Cape district reiterated the views of the previous speakers and the hearing closed

THE TRIAL OF FOSTER. The jury in the Putnam murder case in New York city, have been completed The twelfth juror is James Daniel, a butcher, from Pearl street. The evidence for the prosecution was confined to facts already known, and was concluded on Monday. The Court then adjourned till Tuesday, when the defense opens.

Soldiers of the War of 1812,

ATTENTION!

Congress has passed a law giving a Pension of $8 per month to the officers soldiers and Seamen of the war of 1812, who served sixty days or over, and to the widows of such as have died, and who were married previous to 1815, thus doing justice to this brave and meritorious band of patriots I have all the rolls and records of this service, and they are not to be found at any other place in this State, to my knowledge

I will give every soldier the benefit of these records to establish his claim to a pension, and I will assist him in the prompt and speedy prosecution of his claim If the soldiers' discharge is lost these records are invaluable

The fee is fixed by law at $10, no charge made unless a pension is obtained

Application can be made in person at my office in Bangor, or by letter, giving name of Company, officers, date and length of service, &c

A Few Words to the Ladies.

Many ladies, particularly mothers nursing complain of a tired, listless feeling, or complete exhaustion, on arising in the morning. On the wife and mother devolves the responsibility of regulating the duties of the household. Her cares are numerous, and the mental as well as the physical powers are frequently called into requisition. She often finds her slightest occupation a weary task and existence a burden, while at the same time she has no regular disease. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, if resorted to at this period, will prove an unfailing remedy for this annoying lassitude. The effects of this potent agent are soon seen in the rosy cheek and elastic step, of the head of the family, as with restored health and renewed spirits she takes her accustomed place in the family circle. If this is end in, need be regularly used, [illegible] will never be complained of, and not only would lassitude not be experienced, but many diseases following its advent be avoided, As a medical agent it has no equal, while its pleasing flavor and healthful effects have [illegible] [illegible] and its [illegible] are of some [illegible] [illegible] its virtues and commend it to [illegible]

ITS CURE AND ITS PREVENTIVE,

By J. H. SCHENCK, M. D.

Many a human being has passed away, for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of known and indisputably proved means of cure Those near and dear to family and friends are sleeping the dreamless slumber into which, had they calmly adopted and availed themselves of his wonderfully efficacious medicines, they would not have fallen

Dr Schenck has in his own case proven that wherever sufficient vitality remains that vitality by his medicines and his directions for their use, is quickened into healthful vigor

In this statement there is nothing presumptuous To the faith of the invalid is made no representation that is not a thousand times substantiated by living and visible works The theory of the cure by Dr Schenck's medicines is as simple as it is unfailing Its philosophy requires no argument. It is self assuring self-convincing

The Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the first two weapons with which the citadel of the malady is assailed Two-thirds of the cases of consumption originate in dyspepsia and a functionally disordered liver With this condition the bronchial tubes "sympathize" with the stomach They respond to the morbific action of the liver Here then comes the culminating result and the setting in with all its distressing symptoms of

CONSUMPTION.

The Mandrake Pills are composed of one of Nature's noblest gifts—the Podophillum Peltatum They possess all the blood searching alterative properties of calomel, but unlike calomel, they

"LEAVE NO STING BEHIND"

The work of cure is now beginning The vitiated and mucous deposits in the bowels and in the alimentary canal are ejected The liver like a clock, is wound up It arouses from its torpidity The stomach acts responsively and the patient begins to feel that he is getting, at last

A SUPPLY OF GOOD BLOOD.

The Seaweed Tonic in conjunction with the Pills permeates and assimilates with the food Chylification is now progressing without its previous tortures Digestion becomes painless, and the cure is seen to be at hand There is no more flatulence, no exacerbation of the stomach An appetite sets in

Now comes the greatest Blood Purifier ever yet given by an indulgent father to suffering man. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup comes in to perform its functions and to hasten and complete the cure It enters at once upon its work Nature cannot be cheated It collects and ripens the impaired and diseased portions of the lungs In the form of gatherings it prepares them for expectoration and lo! in a very short time the malady is vanquished the rotten throne that it occupied is renovated and made new and the patient, in all the dignity of regained vigor steps forth to enjoy the manhood or womanhood that was GIVEN UP AS LOST.

The second thing is the patients must stay in a warm room until they get well It is almost impossible to prevent taking cold when the lungs are diseased but it must be prevented or a cure cannot be effected Fresh air and riding out especially in this section of the country in the fall and winter season are all wrong Physicians who recommend that course lose their patients if their lungs are badly diseased and yet because they are in the house they must not sit down quiet, they must walk about the room as much and as fast as the strength will bear to get up a good circulation of blood The patients must keep in good spirits—be determined to get well This has a great deal to do with the appetite and is the great point to gain

To despair of cure after such evidence of its possibility in the worst cases and moral certainty in all others is sinful Dr Schenck's personal statement to the Faculty of his own cure was in these modest words

Many years ago I was in the last stages of consumption confined to my bed, and at one time my physicians thought that I could not live a week then like a drowning man catching at straws I heard of and obtained the preparations which I now offer to the public, and they made a perfect cure of me It seemed to me that I could feel them penetrate my whole system They soon ripened the matter in my lungs and I would spit up more than a pint of offensive yellow matter every morning for a long time

As soon as that began to subside, my cough fever pains and night sweats all began to leave me and my appetite became so great that it was with difficulty that I could keep from eating too much. I soon gained my strength and have grown in flesh ever since

I was weighed shortly after my recovery added the Doctor, then looking like a mere skeleton my weight was only ninety seven pounds my present weight is two hundred and twenty five (225) pounds and for years I have enjoyed uninterrupted health

Dr Schenck has discontinued his professional visits to New York and Boston He or his son, Dr J H Schenck Jr still continue to see patients at their office No 15 North Sixth street Philadelphia every Saturday from 9 A M to 3 P M Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be charged $5 The Respirometer declares the exact condition of the lungs and patients can readily learn whether they are curable or not

The directions for taking the medicines are adapted to the intelligence even of a child Follow these directions and kind Nature will do the rest excepting that in some cases the Mandrake Pills are to be taken in increased doses the three medicines need no other accompaniments than the ample instructions that accompany them First create appetite Of returning health hunger is the most welcome symptom When it comes as it will come let the despairing at once be of good cheer Good blood at once follows, the cough loosens the night sweat is abated In a short time both of the morbid symptoms are gone forever

Dr Schenck's medicines are constantly kept in tens of thousands of families As a laxative or purgative the Mandrake Pills are a standard preparation while the Pulmonic Syrup as a cure of coughs and colds may be regarded as a prophylacteric against consumption in any of its forms

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic $1 50 a bottle or $7 50 a half dozen Mandrake Pills 25 cents a box For sale by all druggists and dealers

Said lands being the same granted by the State of Maine to aid the construction of this road They are situated along the Penobscot and St. John rivers and are heavily timbered and valuable Large tracts especially in the fertile Aroostook Valley (the finest agricultural district in the State) are valuable for farming lands as well as for their timber This immense grant of lands equals about

On completion (in 1872) of 60 miles of Railroad now building, between St. John, N. B. and Halifax, N S. there will be an unbroken line of Railway from Halifax to all the chief cities of the United States, and as four or three days of ocean travel can be avoided, and about 36 hours time saved, from New York, in going to or coming from Europe, by rail to or from Halifax,—a large business in passengers, mails and freight will thereby be added to the traffic over the E. & N. THE MAJOR DESCRIBES

From the unsteady gait of the following lines which we take from the Boston Journal, we surmise that the writer made the return trip in the forward part:

Along with us to Maine,
If Pullman are the people say
To beat upon a train

They'll have a rushing time
Screw it up printed cown
By order of the President,
Which his name it is Brown'

Well you can go and so can Sam
You mustn't count me in
And yet I'd like to see again
My old friend, Gov'nor Goodwin

Oh yes must go don't count your change
No matter 'bout the price
If Pa will pay, why then I will
Or I charge the surplus to Ma

Now start that down the line to try
For we'll be sure to run it
We're going to Mattawamkeag

You'll think it eats you take it dry,

I've heard of likes but won't go East

IMPORTANCE OF GOOD SEED

On and Planting and Subsequent Care of Crops

All who cultivate the soil are interested in the matters referred to in the heading to this article However orthodox may be the belief of most farmers on these subjects it does not save many of the them from sad derelictions Only if we form our opinions from what we see often see of their practice With them seed for splanting is not as a general rule selected from the earliest maturing and most perfect plants These are had under contribution either for the table or the market while the latter and less perfect are reserved for seed or the seed dealer resorts often for supplies which too often disappoint the expectation of a crop from them It is difficult to conceive how it can be otherwise than disappointing It is a well established fact that the earliest maturing plants will finish seed that in turn will produce earlier plants than those that under the same circumstances required longer time to mature But seed dealers cannot always, if they would make a very careful selection of such plants for seed and reject all the rest, or sell their product at less cost to the purchaser Both early and late, bad and good, are gathered together and an average quality is put on the market And sometimes worse than that is done, for I have been astonished with old on ion seed greatly to the debit of profit and loss account

Good seed however cannot be relied upon to produce good crops unless it is carefully planted It is often true that the seed is condemned, when the whole fault lay in the miserable manner in which it was planted I once planted a field of beets that well illustrated this point. The drills were all marked out previously to commencing to drop the seed About seven-eighths of it was dropped by hand before night and not covered During the night and succeeding day it rained hard. On examining the portion dropped previous to the storm, I found that the seed appeared to be well covered with earth by the rain As I was going from home, I told my men to plant the balance of the field when sufficiently dry Without waiting till the land was dry enough they put in the seed.—Contrary to my expectation, they succeeded in dropping the seed without re-marking the drills. The seed was almost on a level with the surface of the soil and was covered with very moist earth. It came up badly, and the plot worked badly all the season, while the other portion of the field, on which the seed was covered by the washing of the rain worked well, and yielded a crop at the rate of fifteen hundred bushels per acre.

Another case of loss by improper planting occurred the past season. A field of about twenty-five acres was furrowed out for corn. A dozen or more men went on to plant it, each having a pocket tied around his waist to hold the seed corn and pumpkin seeds mixed together. Some of the men were accustomed to the use of the hoe, others not. All were expected to keep up in some way, and they did so After the corn came up, I went over the field and found great irregularity in the number of plants in a hill The men were directed to put four kernels of corn in each hill I found that but few hills exceeded that number of plants, while the hills with three, two, and none were largely in the ascendant. The field was not planted over, and when the harvest came it was rare that a hill having four good ears of corn was to be found, notwithstanding much the largest part of the field was good strong land, adapted to corn, and heavily manured The after culture was much after the style of the planting Let us suppose that each hill had been stocked with four good plants and well cultivated, might we not be justified in concluding that the increased amount of the crop over that obtained would have been sufficient to pay for all the labor of planting and after culture? Are we not justified in saying that the profit of raising the corn was sacrificed by this unwise course? This was my conviction at the time the corn was cut up for shocking Let us see if the conclusion is not a just one The corn was planted in hills 4 by 3½ feet. This gives us 3111 hills to the acre With four good plants to each hill, and a good ear to each plant, we have 12,444 ears to the acre As 200 ears will give a bushel of shelled corn, we obtain a yield of 62¼ bushels from an acre.—But as the field would not average more than two and a half ears to the hill, there was only 7,777 ears going us 39 bushels to the acre, or 23½ bushels less than where four ears to a hill are obtained making a large aggregate on a field of twenty five acres, which are corn is worth as with us one dollar a bushel The above mode of computing the yield of corn per acre, furnishes a close approximation with our northern varieties of corn

The season was a dry on, and the frequent stirring of the soil was not resorted to to alleviate the sharpness of drought. I tried an experiment on some hoed corn to see if I could benefit it by stirring the soil to a greater depth than usual in cultivating it. It had been wilting for some time, during the middle of the day, and the bottom leaves had died I experimented with six rows stirring the soil of two rows three inches deeper than the of the other four rows All were alike when the experiment commenced, and all were hoed weekly The hoeings were kept up through the season In a few days after the soil of the two rows were stirred deeper, they began to show signs of increasing verdure and vigor At harvest time they were about a foot taller than the other rows and the straws much better in size and quality This experiment serves to confirm what has been demonstrated so often as to the advantage of deeply stirring the soil during the continuance of a severe drought. Our western corn growers understand the profits of this practice if we are to judge by the old saw in use there, viz "in a dry time rush the plow." The plow is in general use there for working among the corn

[Col N E Farmer

SHOULD LAND BE LONG UNDER GRASS —In a system of farming which makes grain and root crops the main products, in which the land is devoted to tillage, and pastures and meadows are secondary in importance I think experience proves it unwise to let a field remain longer than two years under grass If the object sought by letting the land remain in grass be to fertilize it thereby, two seasons are enough to get the best effects from clover which, of course, should be cut for hay the second year. If the field is allowed to be under grass a longer time than one of clean grass, white clover, red top, or Timothy is formed the soil is compacted and the roots of the grasses cause a great deal of extra labor in filling a hoed crop, and often are not killed the first season, but grow and damage the succeeding grain crop Wire worms and grubs are more apt to work in a corn crop that is planted on a sod said than on a tilled, or, young clover lay

I have observed that these farmers have the best crops who harrow all the fields in more than two years under clover Then manure and plant corn, sow barley or oats the next year, then seed with clover grass and summer fallow for wheat

Later years we have more trouble from the corn grub than formerly we think so that although this enemy to corn was familiar to the Indians Where there is danger from this source it is safer to summer fallow first then plant corn, and sow spring grain and seed down I do not mean to be understood as objecting to grass sod for a corn crop, but that its tough grass roots often cause not killed by the cultivation given the corn, and have over and damage the grain following and that wire worms and grubs are apt to work more injury in the old sod than a new one

Mowing a good field for forage, several seasons in succession, injures it or bearing grain crops, it is nearly as bad as other cropping A field that has two years under clover should have one crop of the clover pastured, or else permitted to go down on the field A crop of clover hay followed by one of seed, taken from a field runs it as much as any grain crop [Cor Rural Home.

THE SHATTERED COLUMN

The monument column in the Place Vendome has been pulled down and shattered. Its revolutionary arms to the sound of revolutionary music, and Paris has one memento the less to attest the fickleness of her hot headed populace. The octagonal square, in the center of which stood this monument has earned the right to be considered a species of drill for the record of the changeful moods of the fierce democracy of the capital. The place owed its creation to Louis XIV in the equestrian statute of the great monarch which bedecked its centre for more than a hundred years Shortly after the head of Louis XVI rolled in the sawdust the monumental effigy of Louis the Magnificent, in the Place Vendome, fell a victim to popular fury Thirteen years later its place was supplied by by the column of Napoleon The Corsican had been invested with the imperial purple on the 2d December 1804 On the 2d of December, 1805, the great Rhine campaign ended with Austerlitz, and Austria and Russia were prostrate at the feet of France To commemorate the glories of that immortal year, which marked the very zenith of the fame of Napoleon, was erected the column which, on Tuesday, was leveled to the dust It was modelled after the Trajan column which commemorates the Dacian campaign of Trajan The original has stood for seventeen centuries and a half, two generations have been the span of existence allotted to the copy The Commune has got some three hundred and sixty thousand pounds of bronze, which it can hardly hope to have time to make much use of, it has shattered some two thousand figures in bas-relief, which all the heads of all the Communitees could not replace The Emperor, in cocked hat and military surtout, has been twice taken down from his perch on the top of the column Once in 1814, he was hurled thence by an unreasoning mob who could pardon anything but failure A still finer statue, in the familiar garb and the historical pose, was set up in a fit of admiration by a people who loved their idol all the more because of Waterloo and St Helena. The Count this Imperial author of the Life of Cæsar conceived the idea of substituting a ridiculous figure, bare-headed and in a toga, for the little man in the cocked hat and surtout But few people will regret the fate of this eleven feet of monumental bronze, however much they may deplore the contemptible and childish malice which prompted the people to heap indignities upon the figure of the once-adored Emperor

Once more, there is an opening for the coming man in the Place Vendome—a vacancy highly significant of the leaderless condition of the French people The Parisians seem to think that they have broken with this Napoleonic tradition in wreaking idle vengeance upon the record of the glories of 1805 The true significance of their act consists in the proof it affords that they are incapable of governing themselves, and are therefore ripe for a fresh infliction of personal rule. The people of the capital have profited very little by disaster if they suppose that despotism can be the work of any single man Had France been true to herself, she would have had no Emperor, successful or otherwise. Waterloo and Sedan would equally have been spared to her, and if Austerlitz and Jena would also have been absent, she would have escaped the stern reckoning which follows, sooner or later, the acts misnamed glorious which the lust of conquest prompts The Communists are no wiser than their fathers, who pulled down the great monarch to make way for the great Emperor, instead of patiently seeking to found, in popular moderation and justice, the true basis of self government.
